“ Kimberly Low lit a candle in memory of Krissie Wai Yee Luong

“ A mutual friend introduced me to Krissie. I remember her being friendly and inviting me to go hiking and to her birthday party. We became friends and hung out for lunches, dinners and even went to a concert together. She was very caring when I was at a low point in my life career-wise and was checking in w/ me often asking how I was doing, which I appreciated greatly. We grew apart in the last few years though and didn't speak to each other for a while. I wanted to give her a call to see how she was doing during the pandemic, but I kept putting it off and now regret not doing so.

If you have a friend that you haven't spoken to in a while and are considering calling, just do it. Please don't make the mistake I did and keep putting it off as you'll never know what could happen.

“ not a single day i can accept you are not here any more.
not a single day i do not think of your departure.

I miss texting you, calling you.
I miss the days and nights we hanged out together
I miss your voice and smiles
I also miss the time when you will only think of me!

YOU are so missed, sweetie!

Rest in Him!

“Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light.”

“ Krissie,

We worked together for a brief period, but each time we needed you, we could count on your expertise. Not only did we get the answers we needed, but those answers were always delivered with passion, great energy, and incredible spirit. I cherish the opportunity to have met you, even if for a little while. It was always a treat and pleasure to work with you.

Thank you for being a light in the darkness, and for the kindness, you brought to everyone who knew you. You will be missed by all, dearly!

With love,
Daisy

“ To Krissie Luong,

When I first met you five years ago my first impression was that you were full of class, taste, style, and politeness; you were very proper and a little rigid. I was intrigued by this encounter and I instantly had to get to know you better.

Throughout the years as we became closer, I realized that you were so much more than my original assumptions. You had a strong spirit, an amazingly huge heart, and such a beautiful soul.

Many words come to mind when I think of you. Activist, Philanthropist, Therapist, Confidant, Food Connoisseur, Musician, Adventurer, Courageous, Giver, Honest, Empath, Intelligent, Caring, Brave, but most importantly... Friend.

Thank you for all the times you were there for me when I needed you and all the wonderful memories. I will cherish them forever. You are in our hearts and minds now and always.

Love,

Danny Nguyen

“ Krissie, thank you being such an awesome friend to me. Please know that you are loved and will never be forgotten. Thank you for being such a strong role model to me all these years. You are strong, intelligent, witty and so much more to all of us. I fondly remember our wine tasting trips and our shabu shabu dinners. Your advice always would go a long way and I loved to hear about all the great work you were doing helping others. Your love, kindness, and sharing will live on in the rest of us. You greatly impacted my life in so many positive ways. I will always be eternally grateful. Rest in peace my beloved friend!

“ I'm sorry to hear this. I knew Krissie when we were in middle school. I still remember her as that young cool teenage girl. She was fearless and willing to stand up for her friends no matter what. I will miss you always, my dear.

“ My family and I have been blessed with Krissie presence in our lives. I have personally know her since 2003, and have build a mutually cherished friendship with her over the years. She was a grounded and strong minded individual that usually isn't afraid of saying things as they are. Sometimes she wouldn't mind giving you a little punch to keep you in check. And with that ring of hers (ooh, that silver crown ring!!!), sometime that leave you a reminder that stays with you for a couple days. I remember stories that she once left a 'reminder' on somebody's face with that ring. I was fortunate enough not to have been the recipient of that one.

Deep down, she was kind, with a good heart, and there for you when you needed her. Just like any individual, she has her ups and down. I am sad that I wasn't able to be there when she need her friends the most.

My memories of her will forever be cherished.

“ Krissie just wanted nice things. Nice friends. Nice Nails. Nice experiences. Loved food. Love snowboarding. Loved her car. Loved her many sisterhoods she established. Loved her close friends she kept. Loved her cat. Loved coffee. Loved being that extremely strong minded alpha woman with opinions. At times, she would be so outwardly strong that it may have seemed she didn't want to talk to you. She had an extremely thick shield.

I was fortunate enough to have been let through. Inside I found a beautiful soul that truly loved animals, loved-cherished her friends, hyper-responsible, actually shy, fearful of judgement, and had a wanderlust for new experiences. She wanted good for the world. Wanted to solve injustices. She was complex. Titanium hard shell to strangers; warm cushy-care bear to her friends. Throughout the years I've seen her be there for several people, supporting them, cheering them up, and helping them out. She was courageous; even though she battled with anxiety and fears, she would often muster the ability to take charge when forced into difficult situations. It dawned on me now, as I write this, that perhaps she was modeling to be the type of person she wanted help from. She was an excellent friend and I first hand saw how much she cared for others and how far she went to help them.

“ Angie and I miss you so much. We have been thinking of you and talking about you often and it always brought a smile to our faces and tears to our eyes. We will miss your kindness, thoughtfulness and generosity of heart.

“ Krissie,

2 weeks ago we were talking about our plans for last week, creating ideas, planning conversations, and discussing how we could love on those around us at WeWork. I told you then that you were "the answer to an unspoken prayer" because just when I was thinking and looking for someone to, talk to my phone buzzed with you on the other end asking if I had time to chat.

I will miss getting sushi together at incredible spots I'd never heard of (and at which you don't dare order off the menu), I'll miss you showing up on a whim in NorCal whenever you thought someone was in need, I'll miss the subtle reminders that chocolate makes for the best bribe, and I'll miss your wit and humor and how I never had a single conversation with you in 2 years that didn't include at least some laughter.

Few will know of your deep love for your family spanning California and the world, even fewer will know of your passion and activism in Hong Kong, but there will be no shortage of people who know of your knowledge, compassion, and sincerity. You were both brilliant and witty, a colleague and a teammate, but most importantly a friend.

Thank you for your beauty and for all you added to the world and to us.

Your friend,

Chris Hammond
