“ One of my fondest memories is when Vic, my husband and I drove out to the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library. It was a beautiful spring day in April of 2010. Vic seemed to really enjoy himself and it was something that we all had been wanting to do for a long time. It is surely a good memory that will not be forgotten. He also loved our Siamese cats and was particularly fond of our six pound female named Sofie. When Victor came to our house, he would carry that little, happy cat around in those big arms of his. They both seemed so content. My friend, Vic, will be sorely missed. Blessings to his family during this difficult time.
